GROCERS' NOTICE.

In accordance with our desire to give our customers the best possible service at the lowest prices, we have decided to discontinue the practice of allowing a discount of 5 per cent. on retail monthly bills, and therefore give notice that on and after the 1st of November, 1904, no discount whatsoever will be allowed on any groceries sold in our stores. All groceries will be sold at net prices, on a basis of spot cash or thirty days' settlement, and there will be no exception made to this rule. Purchases made in our retail departments up to the 1st of November will, of course, be subject to the 5 per cent. discount as heretofore.

The discount question has frequent been the cause of disputes and dissatisfaction and we believe this arrangement will improve our relations with our patrons, while it will at the same time enable us to more adequately meet the keen competition prevailing in our line of business, and to give our customers the benefit of the lowest prices.

FIVE STEP METHOD

Editor Evening Bulletin:—Our most progressive local paper, the Muni News, has recently devoted much space in its editorials in denouncing school methods and devices as carried on in our schools, and declaring the five-step method as "tommy-rot" and other such awkward expressions, and that our common school graduates can no longer, for want of proper training, obtain positions in an office as they did fifteen years ago.

One who has had some experience as a teacher will readily notice that the editor of that "progressive" paper is vastly ignorant of the subject he has written and it is exceedingly surprising that a man who assumes to be an editor of a journal should express his views on a subject of which he has absolutely no knowledge. He may as well step into the office of the plantation manager and suggest some better device in the cultivation of sugar cane—a subject which he, too, has no conception, except possibly that sugar is made from sugar cane.

Our young men of today with the advantages offered in our excellent school system are certainly better prepared when he graduates than the youth fifteen years ago.

Ambitious young men today seek a higher education than that offered in the common schools and carefully prepare for their future work, while his schoolmate without an ambition or circumstances may not permit, are quite satisfied with their common school education, and therefore can not compete with his class. The employer, with reason, employs the ambitious youth who is thoroughly prepared. Instead of the one who is apparently contented with his inferior education.

The so-called "Five-Step Method," briefly speaking, is simply a general plan for the teaching of lessons. It is based on educational principles, and the result of many years of experience.

Thanking you for the space, I remain, yours truly,

WAIT PORT ARTHUR FALL

BARON HAYASHI DISCUSSES SITUATION IN THE ORIENT

NO PROSPECT FOR PEACE AS RESULT OF FIGHTING AT MUKDEN—DIFFERENT WHEN PORT ARTHUR FALLS.

London, Oct. 13.—News of the battle between the Russians and Japanese was eagerly awaited here throughout the day at the Japanese Legation. Many inquiries were made there by British officials, but the Japanese authorities were even less informed than the newspapers. "The suspense was not untended with anxiety, which was more noticeable than during any previous phase of the war."

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister, said: "The report of our successes, welcome as they are, must not be construed as being a forerunner of any decisive blow. It is practically impossible for Kuropatkin to envelope and utterly crush General Kuropatkin, just as it is practically impossible for Kuropatkin to envelope Oyama. A victory in the battle now raging chiefly means to us that Kuropatkin must confess defeat, which is important, but not decisive. He can put forward no strategic excuses as at Liaoyang. Any retreat on the part of the Russian forces now is an open confession to the world that they have suffered a serious reverse."

"Heretofore it has been an open question in some quarters whether Kuropatkin's strategy was not more responsible for the Russian retreatment than Japanese aggression. Kuropatkin has chosen to brush aside all that doubt and make a plain issue. Let it be remembered that Oyama so far has only been fighting from his first line of defense. Retirement to Oyama merely means falling back upon his main defenses and base, namely, Liaoyang, where all preparations in the way of fortifications and ammunition have been made for a prolonged stand in case of necessity."

"That Oyama has met Kuropatkin's advance on Yental with a counter advance indicates a greater state of preparedness on the part of our forces than I anticipated. But there is some doubt if Oyama could follow up any advantage gained in what is comparatively an open fight. Oyama's acceptance of a general engagement from his first and weaker lines implies strength, which makes the motive of Kuropatkin's attack all the more puzzling."

"I understand that such attempts as Kuropatkin made to cut our lines of communication appear to have been confined to those connecting us with Korea. Some of the military critics seem to forget that our main lines of communications are now with Newchwang and not with the Yalu. This is an infinitely cheaper and quicker method of transport. Our second army lines of communication over the Yalu to Korea were only maintained with great difficulty and because we had no other alternative."

"Whatever the result of the present battle, whether Oyama retires to his position at Liaoyang or whether he forces Kuropatkin back toward Mukden, it will only have a small bearing upon the decision of the grim issue at stake."

"Until Port Arthur falls," said the Baron, "any proposal looking to peace must be futile. Defeat or victory to the Russian Manchurian armies merely swells the daily death roll. Kuropatkin driven back and utterly defeated would simply harden Russia's heart. Kuropatkin temporarily successful would only inspire new enthusiasm. In such a case there is no hope of peace. Port Arthur is different. Should it be captured, those in Russia who are supposed to favor a reasonable settlement would have a sentimental and material factor in favor of their point of view that no development of the Manchurian campaign could provide. Japan in possession of Port Arthur could treat for peace."

"How much longer Port Arthur can last I have not the least idea. Hot weather is an advantage to the defenders. From the intense heat and sanitary disadvantages the Japanese could not get away. Against the cold now coming on they can take the necessary precautions and suffer none of those epidemics whereto, if they are not victims they are at least exposed."

"It is impossible," concluded Baron Hayashi, "to think that this war can be allowed to continue indefinitely. Intervention in some shape or form must eventually occur. At the moment Russia dreads anyone suggesting it, because therein is involved a confession of defeat. Should Port Arthur fall, I think it would be different."
